Schoolgirl Friend of Bridegroom, Twice Widowed, His Bride.

MEET AFTER MANY YEARS

Hamilton's Loneliness After Marital Experience Hastens Their Marriage.

That the charm of three is potent in Jore was to-day made known by the announcement of the marriage of Gurdon C: Hamilton and Mrs. Nellie M. Stein, of No. 193 West Eighty-Seventh street, the third venture of each. The ceremony took place last night at the bride's home, the Rev. Henry Marsh Warren, D. D., best known as the "hotel chap ain," officiating. A wedding dinner at Pabst's Circle restaurant followed the service.

The principals in this fifth wedding of their combined experiences have known each other ever since the handsome, dashing widow Stein was pretty Nellie Mary Hunt, a schoolgiri in Bridgeport, Conn., when Mr. Hamilton was embarking in his successful drug business in that city. He married his first wife and was a friend of his future wife's mother when the bride of last night was a girl in

Met Schoolgirl Grown Up. He was doomed to be twice widowed.

and as a man of fifty-five or so he found himself alone and wishing for A wife to grace his home. His two daughters were grown and spent most of their time in Newport and Lenox, he told a friend.

It was then by chance that he again met the woman whom he had so grow up from little girlhood. Neille Hunt, of Bridgeport, was Mrs. Stein, the Upper West Side, a widow, thirty-four years of age.

Like Hamilton, she had had two matrimonial experiences, and had been widowed once, the courts giving relief in the other case. When they again met it was to experience the third remance that had come into the life of each.

Pair Didn't Wait.

He confessed his lonesomeners, proposed and was accepted.

"Long engagements are not for men at my age," he stid, as he hurried to New York to arrange for the ceremony. From his hotel he went to Rev.
Dr. Warren's home. No. 48 West Ninetyfourth street, and secured his zervices.

The wedding dinner at Pabsis last tight followed immediately after the ceremonies.

2.000 ORIENTAL RUGS AT LORD & TAYLOR'S.

Fine Collection of Rare Weaves, Many of Them Family Heirlooms, Placed on Exhibition.

The Oriental, particularly the Persian, having no banks and no life inaurance, safeguards his advanced years by weaving a rug, it tempine in the family until the necessities lead to a sale. It is owing to this trait that there is indviduel handleraft and art every one of the 2,000 Oriental rugs fered for sale during the next ten lars by Lord & Taylor, on the third loor of the store at Broadway and Pwentieth street.

A majority of the rugs exhibited have been heirlooms in Persian familles, for generations in some cases. Several very fine bits of artistic weavfather to son for a hundred years, and have the fine, smooth quality which snly come with Persian rugs, A ma-lority of the rugs have been in use from twenty-five to arry years, and are ine examples of the aging of rugs, which cannot be imitated by artificial methods. Old vegetable dyes have bein used to give the rugs the fine, soft, silky colors, so different from the antiline-dyed varieties.

The exhibit comprises all Persian pieces of unusual sizes, and ranges pleces of unusual sizes, and ranges from small rugs to tur partie, a van am ing hall strips, slany different weaves fre spown, including camers-har rugs of rare lustre. Serabends and Kermanhahs. Rug weaving has been the chief of Persia, and the please windined or sale reveal the results of a thousand years of development in this offsich of the urts and crafts. When bord & Teylor's agent went on his collecting four through the Orient rugs were brought out through the Orient rugs were brought out for his purchase. rugs were brought out for his purchase which had been family helricoms for a sentury. Rare combinations in Turkey reds and greens, fine Eastern patterns which have soldom been seen here, in many cases which embadied the artistic pany cases which embedded the arristle testan at the weaver and were nover luplicated, were secured and are now in sale. The whole third floor of the ard a Taylor store is a vast gallery of this art of the Orient, temptingly lisplayed for connoisseurs.

The diplay, in fact, is well worth an inspection by those who are interested a artistic and beautiful rugs, and hose wishing to examine some wonderfully individual weaves will be degitted by the variety exhibited.

DRUG MENACES A PRISON

Jocaine Smuggled In, and When

Cut Off Convicts Are Crazed. COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 11. - Warden C. B. Gould is alarmed over the growth C. B. Gould is alarmed over the growth of the cocaine habit among convicts in the State prison. The drug is smuggled to them, but he has been inable to discover the method.

His vigilance seems temporarily to have cut off the supply, and many at the convicts are half crazed for want of the stimulant. William Rockwell, a burglar, begged for the drug to-day, but the prison physician refused unless he would tell how the cocaine was smuggled in.

Rockwell then placed his hand under a tap hammer in the prison shop and let it cut off two fingers.
